faraway lands line the main road next to the bay. The North Coast & Guanyinshan National Scenic Area Administration designed and built the Southside

Trail as part of its efforts to develop the leisure and recreation opportunities at Qianshui Bay. Completed in May 2014, this trail skirts the coastline adjacent to a special place for leisurely walks, splashing in the surf, playing in the sand... whatever your heart desires. Relax, recharge, and fully enjoy this gorgeous expanse of coastline. Visit the Baisha Bay Visitor Center to learn more about the area's ecology, collect information on other North Coast tourist sites and services, and enjoy a multimedia presentation. Located close to Baisha Bay, the Shimen Kite Park is the venue of the annual Shimen International Kite Festival, with avid kite flyers from around the world converging on the park to show off

Café Street and connects with the bay's Northside Trail.

3. Baisha Bay

Stunningly beautiful Baisha Bay is a

The Linshanbi Peninsula in the Shimen District juts out into the waters of the East China Sea, with great views of Baisha Bay and Fugui Cape.

Northeasterly monsoon winds and the eroding waters have produced a plethora of windkanter rocks here. Continue toward Linshanbi Fishing

Harbor and down the boardwalk shaded by ironwood trees to see where scenes from the 2007 movie Secret were filmed. Having the azure sea as your constant companion makes Linbishan a very pleasant place to cycle!

Located near the 23.5km marker of the coastal highway, just to the east of Baisha Bay, this place originally was a camp used by the Coast Guard. It sits half way between Linshanbi Cape and Fugui Cape, right by the ocean in a very cenic location. After the building was restored, it is now a space where visitors can relax and where exhibitions are held. It has become a new cultural traction on the North Coast.

[Before You Go on a Bike Ride]

To ensure a pleasant and comfortable ride, we suggest preparing well beforehand. Several points to consider before hitting the road include:

1 Prepare Yourself for the Exercise Assess your own physical fitness and limits. Exhaustion and injury may result from overexerting yourself.

2 Prepare an Appropriate Bike and Other Gear Select the right bicycle for your needs, wear appropriate clothing, and bring the right gear.

3 Do a Pre-Departure Check and Repairs Check your brakes, tire air pressure, and other items to

4 Know Your Route Beforehand

Familiarize yourself using a map of your planned route. Locate the bicycle shops or service stations along the route where you could go to for assistance.

5 Go with a Friend

Share the scenery and happy times with a friend and you'll have someone to help out in case of unanticipated problems.

[Rules of the Road]

- 1 Please observe traffic signals and signs, and follow all police
- 2 On main roads, cyclists should remain in the right-hand ection of the right (slow) lane of traffic. Please also stay to the right-hand side on one- and two-lane roads.
- 3 Please do not cycle in the middle (fast) lanes of traffic. Please
- 4 Bicycles should have properly working brakes, bells, lights, wide for local delicacies, including deep-fried pork fritters, taro patties, succulent sweet potatoes, and duck meat dishes. Cafeteria-style service is another aspect of the Jinshan culinary experience that sets it apart. At Jinshan Old Street you can still find many traces of a prosperous past. Close to Cihu Temple there is a row of old houses, traditionally narrow and long. The Old Street is also the perfect place to buy souvenirs and savor old tastes of Taiwan.

2. Shitoushan Park/Twin Candlestick Islets

Shitoushan Park embraces a geologically and ecologically interesting peninsula that juts out into the sea from Jinshan. Enjoy the park's well-preserved environment and unspoiled coastline scenery. Rising 70m above the waves, Shitoushan is carpeted in flowers throughout the spring and summer. Take advantage of the park's many pavilions to relax and take in views of the coast, including the Yehliu Peninsula to the east and Huanggang Fishing Harbor, Jhongjiao Beach, and verdant mountain views to the west. Don't miss the exceptional views of the Twin Candlestick islets just offshore from the red pavilion at the park's northern end.
